

BOMBAY IN PANIC AS CITY FLOODED

DEFEAT OF BLEASE, VICTORY OF LONG FEATURE VOTING RESULTS

Couzens Wins In Michigan Over Strong Opposition; Anti-Dry Wins In Washington; Independent Named For Detroit Mayor

By International News Service
Apparent defeat of Cole L. Blease, dominant figure in South Carolina politics, was the outstanding result today of primaries held in eight states yesterday. Early returns in the run-off primary for the Democratic senatorial nomination indicated that Blease had met defeat at the hands of former Congressman James F. Byrnes, pro-Smith man in 1928.

In Louisiana Governor Huey P. Long appeared certain of victory in the race for the Democratic nomination for the United States senate, International News Service dispatches showed. He had a comfortable lead over Senator Joseph E. Ransdell.

George H. Shaw was leading William V. Hodges for the Republican senatorial nomination in Colorado. Edward P. Costigan was considered safely in as the Democratic nominee.

In Michigan Senator Couzens was encountering a surprisingly strong race but was believed a victor for the senate nomination over former Governor Osborn.

Governor Weeks won the Republican nomination for the senate in Vermont. Weeks is dry. Stanley C. Wilson was leading in the fight for the Republican nomination for governor.

John C. Winant held a slight lead today according to International News Service dispatches in the race for the Republican nomination for governor in New Hampshire. U. S. Senator Keys was unopposed.

RECOVERY IN STEEL AND IRON INDUSTRY IS MATERIALIZING

Improvement Is Slow; Steel Ingot Output Shows Increase

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—Slow materialization of the confidently expected seasonal recovery in iron and steel will be noted by the Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow. Although demand for finished steel thus far this month has been moderately larger than in the corresponding part of August, nothing resembling a broad buying movement has set in on the persistence of discordant market tendencies continues to obscure the outlook.

Curtailment of pig iron production is apparently still under way with four additional furnaces, three of them steel plant stacks, taken out of service so far in September.

Sharply contrasted with the unchecked decline in pig iron requirements is the increase of 5.5 per cent in steel ingot output in August and the further gain this month indicated by current estimates. Present ingot production is fully 55 per cent of today's capacity which is 2 to 4 per cent larger than the total officially reported at the close of 1929 and is 1-1/2 per cent higher than the average for last month.

The gain in steel also contrasts with market tendencies in pig iron. Prices on foundry iron for local delivery have receded 50c a ton at Cleveland, and 50c concessions on attractive tonnages are reported at Chicago. Scrap markets, on the other hand, are holding their own with heavy melting grade up 25c a ton at Pittsburgh.

The Iron Age composite price for scrap has advanced from $13.87 to $13.75 a gross ton, up 67c. from that of five weeks ago. The pig iron composite is unchanged at $16.55 a gross ton, and that finished steel figure at 2.142c a lb.

LONG MISSING WILL FOUND BY PLUMBER

MARIETTA, O., Sept. 10.—A fruit jar containing a missing will and certificates of deposit for an estate worth more than $10,000 was found today by a plumber's helper who was tearing out pipes in the home of the late Joseph Campbell here.

Campbell, who was regarded as an eccentric character, died a year ago.

Nearly 100 heirs have been located in several states and all had qualified as beneficiaries. The administrator was partitioning the real estate and the estate was to have been distributed in a few days.

A new administration under the will which was accidentally discovered was to start today.

FOIL JAIL BREAK

ATHENS, O., Sept. 10.—Six window bars in the Athens County jail here were being replaced today following an unsuccessful jail break last yesterday.

Jail officials, who were tipped by a prisoner, frustrated the attempted break for liberty. Fifteen saw blades were found in one of the cells.

BANK CRASH TRIAL

This is the first posed picture of Laverne Lindgren, taken in a Chicago court, as her trial opened for her alleged part in failure of State Bank of Maywood, Ill., several months ago. She is accused with Elmer Langguth, former president of the bank and her alleged sweetheart.

CANADA PLANS INCREASES IN TARIFF RATES

Parliament Called In Special Session; May Be Retaliatory

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service)

OTAWA, Ont., Sept. 10.—Canada, which for many years has been America's best customer, is about to take a leaf from the American book and jack up her tariff barriers.

Any doubt about this has been dispelled by developments at the outset of the special session of the Canadian Parliament called by the new Bennett government in much the same fashion that the special session of seventy-first congress was summoned by the Hoover administration eighteen months ago.

It is the first time that special session of the Canadian parliament has ever been summoned during peace, and excitement and interest is running high throughout the dominion. The liberals are out of power and the conservatives are in—strongly in—with a definite working majority in the house of commons and a clear mandate to proceed with those measures which the conservative leaders deem necessary to rehabilitate and protect Canadian industries.

Canadians decry the word "retaliation" as applied to their tariff intentions with regard to the recently enacted Smoot-Hawley bill. Yet there is scarcely any doubt that the plans of the new government to boost tariff rates are designed to be just that. The Canadians do not intend to sit idly by and see everything they sell to the United States priced higher to the ultimate consumer without taking some retaliatory action against American products, even though the phrase "retaliatory" is shunned and deprecated on all sides.

As one prominent Canadian official put it to the International News Service correspondent: "Your officials say that American industries have been built up and fostered through the American policy of protection. If that is true, the same policy applied from our side of the border is calculated to do the same for us."

ATTEMPT TO BETTER EDERLE MARK FAILS

DOVER, Eng., Sept. 10.—An attempt to Miss Peggy Duncan of South Africa to lower Gertrude Ederle's English channel swim record failed today.

Miss Duncan, favored throughout the night by smooth water but forced to battle her way into the harbor here against strong counter currents, reached South Foreland sixteen hours and fifteen minutes after entering the water at Cape Gris Nez on the French side.

Miss Ederle negotiated the distance in fourteen hours and thirty-one minutes.

RIGID CENSORSHIP AIDS BUENOS AIRES RETURN TO NORMAL

Troops Continue In Charge Of Capital Of Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 10.—Martial law and rigid censorship regulated the pulse of the Argentine capital today while the provisional government of General Jose Uriburu endeavored to intrench itself firmly and hasten return to normalcy.

Outwardly the city continued to offer a warlike scene, with soldiers, airplanes, machine gun detachments and cruisers fully in evidence, but there was no visible indication that trouble was imminent. Ominous reports foreboding impending events and rumors of mysterious occurrences remained unsupported, with no evidence available tending to show a counter-revolution was brewing.

It was calculated that the new teeth put into the martial law by the government was the result of precaution against further disorders such as occurred on inauguration day rather than a case of necessity precipitated by discovery of some counter-development. General Augustin Justo was placed in command of the Buenos Aires garrison and appointed inspector-general of the army.

The new government, meanwhile, acted vigorously to tear the last vestige of power and influence from the old Irigoyen faction. Convinced Monday night's debacle of shooting and rioting sprang from a deliberate plot fostered by sympathizers of the deposed regime, General Uriburu and his ministers put forth a detaining hand on a score of former national leaders and held them for trial.

The fate of deposed President Hipolito Irigoyen, broken old man of South American politics, remained somewhat indefinite. It was understood that by government order he was to be removed to a battleship now lying in the harbor off La Plata as soon as his health has improved sufficiently to allow the transfer. He has been in the military barracks at La Plata since he fled the capital after being ousted by the Revolutionists.

Irigoyen, from meagre reports received here, was in critical health. It was feared he would not bear up very long under an additional strain.

Alarmed by the tragic disturbance climaxing inauguration day, which resulted in seven deaths and fifty injuries, the new government issued strict orders against carrying or possession of weapons by civilians. When shooting started the capital on the erroneous reports that a counter-revolt had begun, hundreds of persons looted stores and armories of weapons, enhancing the general confusion.

A public execution took place in Plaza Mayor scene of Monday night's major disturbance, when two looters were executed by a firing squad. Authorities denied that politics were concerned in the carrying out of the death sentences.

GRAF ZEPPELIN IS VISITOR IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—The German air monarch Graf Zeppelin, paying Soviet Russia a long-promised visit, arrived here shortly before noon today and was moored to a specially constructed mast erected on the municipal airport.

Fully 100,000 spectators cheered its arrival, impatiently awaited by the specially invited throng since early morning.

Soviet government officials and members of the German embassy welcomed Commander Hugo Eckener and the twenty passengers who made the trip from Friedrichshafen. The city was in holiday dress.

The Graf, sighted in a cloudy sky outside Moscow, a few hours before it pointed its nose toward the mooring mast, was escorted to the field by a squadron of Soviet army planes. The airfield formerly was used by Czarist troops as a parade ground.

FIRST PICTURE OF REMAINS OF ANDREE PARTY

BRITISH HELP GUARD FOOD TO STOP RIOTING

Sailors Assist In Relief; Estimate Dead At 3,500

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 10.—British bluejackets from the H. M. S. Danae stood guard over the food depots of this storm wrecked city today, while an army of workers labored incessantly to expedite relief work.

Following a request by President Trujillo that the United States government grant the services of 100 marines to aid in keeping order, it was believed that all danger of further food riots which have added to the general misery in the past few days would cease with additional preventive forces.

Dominican engineers who have been in charge of untangling the twisted mass of debris piled up by last Wednesday's hurricane gave out an official estimate of lives estimated lost and the property damage exacted.

The dead, it was estimated in their official report, reached the staggering total of 3,500 so far, with hundreds of bodies still under the ruins.

Injured were numbered at 18,000, with many expected to die.

Property damage inflicted by the storm was counted in the vicinity of $25,000,000.

With the arrival of several more ships as well as airplanes of various nations bearing cargoes of food and medical supplies, great progress became apparent in the handling of relief work and medical cases. Thousands of sufferers were systematically fed under supervision of the Red Cross.

BOULDER DAM

Workers all over the country have been reading about Boulder dam and may have set out for this supposedly job Utopia. The history and exact status of the Boulder dam project will be told in a series of three dispatches by Charles P. Stewart, Central Press Washington correspondent, who obtained his information first hand from government officials. The first dispatch of this interesting series begins on today's editorial page.

HUBBELL DEMANDS DEMOCRATIC PARTY STAND ON PROHIBITION

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 10.—Intention of trying to induce the Democratic state convention here September 16 to adopt either a "dry" or a "wet" plank in its state platform was announced today by Attorney Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland. Hubbell is one of the nominees chosen at the Democratic state primary last month for judge of the Ohio Supreme Court.

"Under the new election law, my status as a judicial candidate does not give me a delegate's right to be heard from the floor of the convention," declared Hubbell. "However, I shall ask for the privilege of the floor in order to repeat to the convention my position. I trust that you and other county leaders in attendance at the Columbus convention on September 16 will see to it that I am granted this privilege."

Hubbell reiterated his recent claim that there was a "spineless surrender" when the Democratic leaders, meeting here after the primary, agreed upon a policy of evasion and decided not to place a prohibition plank in their state platform this year.

"I could respect the right of former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, (Democratic nominee for United States Senator) to his own sincere opinion or the right of former Congressman George White, Marietta, (Democratic nominee for governor) to his own sincere opinion, but I cannot respect the party bosses' decision to pussy-foot," Hubbell continued.

Bulkley, a wet favors repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead and Jones dry laws. White, a dry, is credited with being among the group opposing insertion of a wet plank in the Democratic state platform.

"The Columbus convention should face the issue and adopt either a wet or a dry plank. If a dry plank is adopted, Mr. Bulkley if he so desires, has the privilege of withdrawing from the (Democratic state) ticket. If a wet plank is adopted, Mr. White has a like privilege. Either vacancy could be filled by the Democratic state committee," said Hubbell.

"The program dictated by the party bosses, however, seems to be for the convention to soft pedal on the liquor question and to assist Mr. Bulkley to corral the dry vote. This program is on a par with Ruth Hanna's present method of campaigning in Illinois."

"As a wet, Mr. Bulkley obtained the nomination for senator from 40 per cent of the voters. As a dry, Mr. White obtained the nomination for governor from 60 per cent of the voters. In my opinion, both Mr. Bulkley and Mr. White should strive to their utmost to have inserted in the party platform a plank declaring for those principles in which they respectively believe and on which they were respectively nominated, and neither Mr. Bulkley nor Mr. White should be a party to any compromise which is not in accord with their sincere convictions but which has for its purpose the mere obtaining of votes. If any such compromise, or harmony program, is agreed to, the voters of Ohio will know it to be a 'spineless surrender,'" Hubbell asserted.

Hubbell's remarks were made at a meeting of the party bosses, which was held at the Hotel Hamilton here today. The meeting was attended by the party bosses, including Mr. Bulkley, Mr. White, and Mr. Hubbell.

HOUSES CRUMBLE IN DOWNPOUR; LACK OF FOOD THREATENING

Landslide Injures Three; Traffic At Standstill

BOMBAY, Sept. 10.—A flood of major proportions, the worst in the past 100 years, inundated Bombay today after a terrific downpour which lasted thirty-six hours.

The city, submerged in twenty-one inches of muddy water that poured like a Biblical flood out of murky ceilings, was practically paralyzed and isolated from the rest of India. Traffic splashed through the flooded streets in some sections, but for the greater part all vehicular activity was at a standstill.

Panic swept the dense native quarters as the deluge swamped away the weaker shelters, carrying flimsy household materials away in the path of the swift flood current. Mud houses crumbled like melting wax, with natives floundering in confusion through the streaming rain in blind dashes for shelter.

Three persons were injured in the heart of the city when a hillside collapsed, sliding tons of mud before it. Emergency details of police were rushed to all sections of the city to cope with the situation.

The menace of a food shortage immediately threatened the poorly stocked city, causing authorities to send out urgent calls for relief. The entire city was placed on short rations to conserve food in the hope of averting a famine.

Vegetables, milk and meat supplies were badly lacking, as well as drinking water. The city wells were believed contaminated.

General council elections scheduled for today were postponed until September 18 because of the inability of voters to reach the polls. No fatalities have been reported as yet.

Relief agencies in neighboring centers have been urged to speed all efforts in reaching Bombay with food supplies and other necessities.

PREDICT NEW SPEED MARK WILL BE SET

MONTERREY, Mex., Sept. 10.—A new world's speed record for modified stock automobiles is predicted as the outcome of the 150 mile road race to be held September 16 between Laredo, Texas, and Monterrey by the Mexican Automobile Association.

All traffic on the highway, one of the finest in Mexico, will be eliminated on the day of the race in order that the contestants will be enabled to drive at top speed over the entire distance.

The race course will present every type of speedway condition to the racers. For a distance of forty-four miles south of Laredo, the highway lies in a straight line and race officials predict a new speed record for modified stock automobiles will be set on this particular stretch. It is said to be the longest absolutely straight stretch of surfaced highway on the North American continent.

The race, which will be competed in by both American and Mexican contestants, will feature the 16th of September celebration, Mexico's Independence Day, in Monterrey.

COUNTERFEITER IS SENT TO ATLANTA

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10.—Clinton Walton of Sherrodsville, O., was found guilty of charges of counterfeiting in federal district court here today and was sentenced to five years imprisonment in Atlanta Penitentiary by Judge Samuel West.

Walton was arrested last June after federal authorities had found nine counterfeiting plates buried on his farm near Sherrodsville. The plates, federal agents declared, were for use in manufacturing $10 federal reserve notes.

HORSE AND BUGGY STILL HERE

ATHENS, O., Sept. 10.—The horse and buggy are still championed in Athens, even though the residents are talking of the need for a landing field here for airplanes and about other newfangled contraptions. The city council has decided that the most serious requirement is a hitching rack for horses. Rufus Hopkins, president of the council, said that farmers who came to town in their wagons and buggies could find no parking space and no place to tie the horses.

CITY TO PURCHASE NEW POLICE AUTO

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HUMILITY—Whoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me. —Matthew 1:4, 5.

THE BETTER WAY

Five of the outstanding paragraphs of President Hoover's recent Decoration Day address at Gettysburg were the following:

"The weaving of freedom is and always will be a struggle of law against lawlessness, of individual liberty against domination, of unity against sectionalism, of truth and honesty against demagoguery, of peace against fear and conflict. In the forming of this pattern, the abuse of politics often muddies the stream of constructive thought and dams back the flow of well considered action."

"In the solution of the problems of our time, we have some new lamps to guide us. The light of science has revealed to us a new understanding of forces and a myriad of instruments of physical ease and comfort to add to the joy of life. The growth of communications, of education, of the press, have made possible a new unity of thought and purpose."

"But the light that guides our souls remains the same as that whereby our fathers were led. It is the store of knowledge, the great inspirations of men's souls, the ideals which they carry forward, that have lifted the nation to ever greater heights."

"The Union has not become merely a physical union of states, but rather a spiritual union in common ideals of our people. Within it is room for every variety of opinion, every possibility of experiment in social progress. Out of such variety comes growth but only if we preserve and maintain our spiritual solidarity."

"The things of the spirit alone persist. It is in that field that the nation makes its lasting progress."

MAKING GOOD

A prominent educator says: "I have been given a pretty rough deal; two other boys have been promoted ahead of me; they have not been with the concern as long as I have and do not know as much about the business. I call it rotten," said a young man employed in a big business firm.

"What do you do with your spare time?" inquired a friend to whom he made his complaint.

"Well," he said, "I spend one evening with my girl each week, and one night away from home with my work." He looked out through the window and continued, "The remainder of the evenings I run around with the boys. I am a regular fellow, a man among men."

This young man never found time to study or to read; he spent no time with the home folks; gave his parents no chance to impart good advice or to even know him.

The two boys who were promoted spent their leisure time in self-improvement. "Having a good time" was not their policy but an ambition to make good at any cost possessed them.

The office management measured the boys by results. Results always tell the story.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON
THE CLEAN NEWSPAPER

There used to be more criticism of newspapers than there is today. Some were called "clean" and some were referred to as not clean. Times are different. Magazines and books have so far outrun newspapers in frankness and in open discussion of subjects once spoken of in whispers that the newspaper is in a class of cleanliness all its own. The average newspaper does not tell dirty stories; it does not draw upon fiction to paint life; it does not defend immorality. In fact it does little moralizing of any sort. It tells what happened and it is readable for all members of the family. People don't go to the newspapers for racy reading. They don't go to newspaper editors to be shocked. They go to magazine makers and book publishers.

ALIKE AND UNLIKE

The man who is liberal in his attitude toward others and severe in his attitude toward himself is usually the best and kindest citizen. Most of us are able to live with ourselves because we excuse our common faults. We may think twice about the words of Bishop Abbott, of Kentucky. The bishop says:

"The difficulty of living with other people comes from the fact that we are at once so much alike and so much unlike. The fact we are so much alike should make us patient with one another, it should make us forgiving, and we should expect and look for the best in other people. Oftentimes we criticize faults in others without realizing we have those very same faults. And again, we are too prone to see only the worst traits of those around us; instead we should search out their virtues and thus recognize the best in people."

"The fact that we are so much unlike one another should make us appreciate the fact that people are different and that they have a right to be different."

HEADS AND BRAINS

Your may have a big head but you needn't be proud of it. You have just that much more weight to carry around. Dr. Dandy, noted Johns Hopkins surgeon, finds that nearly two-thirds of the brain can be cut away without impairing the intellectual powers. You may have a big brain, as far as measurements go, and it may be just something to hang your hat on. You may have a very little brain, or part of a brain, and use it a lot—and be smart. In fact it's a safe plan never to look down on a physically little man. Very likely he carries something in his little head that was left out of your big one.

INSTALLMENTS

It's hard times that put the "stall" in installments.

SMOOTHING UP

The youngster about ready to go to college should now make up his mind whether he is going to cut down his ignorance or simply lay on a veneer which will cover it.

TAKE YOUR OWN ADVICE

Books can tell us much; science can guide us; friends can help us. But the great choices of life must be made by and through our own judgment and on our own responsibility, if we are grown up. When a man is of age he is no longer dependent on his parents for direction if he is normal. He must look to himself. He is responsible for his acts. Advice may help. Science may give light. But when you come to the forks of the road you must look deep into your own motives and decide.

GOOD OLD BURLESQUE

NEW YORK CITY, New York.

Shunted off of the city's dazzling highways, Burlesque, in New York, is making a last stand and putting on a bold front at the National Winter Garden, over on Second Ave. and Houston St.

They opened up for the new season the other night—same old dame, same old cigar smoke, same old double entendre—same old story, nothing new.

And yet it's good—so very far superior to the more pretentious guff up on Mazda Lane.

There never really was very much to burlesque, when you came to analyze it. A few patchy queens, a sleazy little comedian, a few stupid dirty cracks, a suggestive song or two and there you were—half the lure of the thing being in the imagination of the patrons themselves. The very fact that they were sitting there puffing smoke into each other's ears was proof of the fact that they were a lot of gay dawgs.

In reality there were never anything much more than a lot of poor, defeated, white-collar Good-Time Charlies playin' hell on damnation at a $2 limit.

HOT STUFF!

The New York Police, seeking an interview with a racketeer known as "Legs" Diamond, thought to be en route to Europe, got into communication with Scotland Yard. The Evening News of London, scenting a good yarn, called Commissioner Mulrooney on the trans-Atlantic phone and asked for particulars.

"Waal," the London paper quoted the Commissioner as saying, "this poor, yella, dash-livered racketeer has joped off. . . . This boloney about New York bein' all het up about the arrival of Al Capone is all tabloid stuff—bunk."

Informed of the London account, Mulrooney said:

"Somebody telephoned me from London. As nearly as I can recall I talked to him about like this: 'Well, now, don't get excited about it. Diamond doesn't rate very high here.'"

"Probably the conversation was not lengthy enough to overcome preconceived ideas of what it should have been like."

Rippin' journalism I calls it—eh, wot, wot!

ALREADY COUNTING 'EM BEFORE THEY HATCH

PRESENT STATUS OF BOULDER DAM REVEALED BY WASHINGTON WRITER IN A SERIES OF THREE DISPATCHES

(The first of a series of three articles on Boulder Dam.)

WASHINGTON—Boulder dam has been so much talked about as a power site that it is something of a shock to be reminded, at the interior department's reclamation bureau, that it was not a power project in the first place—and is not yet, except incidentally.

Flood prevention on the lower river was what the government's engineers originally had in mind, in proposing to harness the Colorado.

With a flow fluctuating from 1,200 cubic feet per second at low water, to 200,000 cubic feet at an occasional maximum, the stream naturally is periodically a grave menace, even though normally a blessing to the agricultural valleys in its vicinity—notably the Imperial valley, where 70,000 people live, equally in the shadow of the Colorado's flood.

Dependent on the river for irrigation.

"In the shadow" is no mere figure of speech, either.

The Colorado casts a real shadow along the edge of the farming region which its lower reaches water. That is to say, the bottom of the river, on the stream's side of the levee, is nine feet above the fields on the landward side. Moreover, let the water once break through and it would not drain off again, as most rivers do after an overflow; the valley is lower than the Colorado delta. Transformed into a great inland lake, it would remain a lake.

Twenty years ago, Dr. Elwood Mead, now a commissioner of the interior department bureau of reclamation, began his study of means for the lower Colorado valley's protection.

It involved consideration of the drainage problems of an area, as the doctor points out, equivalent to the area of New England and the middle states plus Ohio and Indiana—an area including nearly all of Arizona, about half each of Utah and Colorado, southwestern Wyoming, western New Mexico, eastern Nevada and southeastern California, not to mention a sizeable triangle of old Mexico.

Dr. Mead's own first thought was to begin operations well toward this region's northern headwaters, with an initial storage reservoir at Flaming gorge, in the Colorado river's big tributary, the Green river.

Other engineers disagreed with him. They said Flaming gorge was too far upstream—that there were too many important affluents of the Colorado between there and the imperiled lowlands, and that too many dams would be needed to control them separately.

As time passed, some 70 dam sites were thoroughly examined and Black canyon, in the Colorado itself, the trunk river of the entire system, was the one finally chosen—in preference, by the way, to Boulder canyon, a score or so of miles farther upstream, despite the fact that it is as Boulder dam that the project is known, to reclamation officials as well as to the general public.

Of all the dam sites considered, Black canyon, he it understood, is farthest downstream.

A downstream site has the obvious advantage of eliminating the necessity for a multiplicity of the comparatively small dams which would be required to establish control of the main river through the control of its tributaries, individually.

On the other hand, the device of boiling many large dams down into one large one calls for a stupendous degree of size in the latter.

Three and a half million cubic yards of cement, which is the amount it is estimated will go into Boulder (or Black canyon) dam, may mean something to an engineer. To me I admit it does not signify anything very enlightening. A dam exceeding 700 feet high is more tangible. Still more so is the information, forthcoming from the investigators' reports, that the Colorado river's rush through Black canyon has spells, at high water, of approximating the Mississippi's average flow past St. Louis.

Anyone who has ever looked down on the Mississippi from the Eads bridge even at only an average stage of the river, surely will agree that it is a mighty big stream.

Of course, Boulder dam will not always have to hold back a torrent of the proportions of the Mississippi, but it will have to be equal to it in an emergency—indeed, in recurring emergencies—every year or two, or every few years, at any rate.

Like Work of Nature

As they tell the story at the bureau of reclamation, those 3,500,000 cubic yards of concrete, wedged, hardened to the consistency of rock, into the bottleneck of Black canyon, will have all the effect of a genuine work of nature—will be just as substantial and permanent.

For example, though it should never be touched by man's hands again, after being completed, it nevertheless would survive through the ages like any geologic formation. To be sure, the water would flow over the top of it—instead of coming through in regulated quantities, as its engineering staff will manage it. It would be a cataract, but there that wall would remain forever, in the face of anything short of an earthquake to shatter it, with a 115-mile-long, 145,000-acre lake behind it.

Need I say that everything connected with Boulder dam—the dam itself, its height, its artificial lake, its water power, its every detail—will be the largest of its kind in the world? No; certainly not.

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent
THE EGG WAS SAVED, AND HOW!

Busy had sense. What was the use in telling tales to yourself when what you'd done hadn't hurt anybody. So Peter took the wise Aunt's advice and bent over to tuck the eggs under his arms. Suddenly it seemed to him he had lost his hat. What was it? Oh, his hat. Peter put his hand up to his head, and sure enough—his hat was missing.

"What's the matter? Have you lost your cover?" demanded Busy. Peter nodded.

"I suppose so, and I'm sorry!" the boy replied. "My hat was brand new and I liked it." I wonder where and how I lost it?

"I bet I know," Busy chuckled, but before he could say more Peter cried:

"Hurrah! Here it is on the floor. And now I know why that egg didn't break. It fell on my hat, and my hat is soft."

"Oh all things!" Busy was as pleased as the boy was. Good fortune certainly follows in your footsteps. I do believe you are going to bring luck to Ant-town!"

"Listen!" Peter cocked his head on one side. "What's that noise?"

"Only the Ants singing a thanksgiving song," answered Busy. "If I know anything at all, Hunter Ant is returning with her spoils. Before long there will be a feast. Are you hungry?"

Peter didn't answer. Somehow he had a notion that any food which would be a feast for Ants would cause him to fast. Luckily Busy didn't notice the boy's silence.

"Hurry along, boy!" cried Busy, quickening her own pace. We want to get into the dining room before all the fun is over!"

Next: "First Honors to the Hunter."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Watermelon Rounds

French Spinach and Ham Dish

Potatoes au Gratin

Hot Buttered Rolls

Fresh Cherry Preserves

Stuffed Tomato Salad

(Served with dinner on large plate)

Chocolate Ice Box Cake

Coffee Mints

This is a bridge lunch menu.

It is served on the card tables. The bridge covers are fastened on the tables, then luncheon cloths placed on top, and the luncheon served on them. After the meal the lunch cloths are removed and the tables all ready for cards.

Today's Recipes

Spinach and Ham—Two cups cooked spinach, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon brown sugar, one and one-half cups milk, one-fourth cup spinach juice, one cup chopped boiled ham, two hard cooked eggs, one-half cup buttered crumbs. Arrange spinach in bottom of greased casserole. Make white sauce, adding seasoning. Stir until boiling point is reached, add chopped ham and eggs. Pour over spinach. Sprinkle more meat or eggs over top if desired.

Suggestions

To Clean and Dress Poultry—Make a small incision below the breast bone. Insert the hand and carefully loosen the internal organs, the entrails, the gizzard, the heart and the liver. Reserve the last three; these are known as the giblets. Care should be taken not to break the gall bladder, which is attached to the liver. The liquid content of the gall bladder is very bitter and makes the flesh unpleasant to eat. Remove the lungs and kidneys. Insert two fingers under the skin close to the neck and remove the windpipe and the crop. Pull back the skin of the neck and cut off the neck close to the body, leaving enough of the neck skin to fold down under the back if the bird is to be roasted. Remove the oil bag from the tail. Clean the inside of the bird by running water through it and wipe the outside with a damp cloth.

Nervousness Causes Many Disorders

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SUPPOSE for a moment you think not so much of what you eat as how you eat it. Perhaps all those digestive upsets you have are due not so much to some article or articles of food which your stomach and liver and bowels cannot cope with, as that your nervous system is not set exactly properly to allow your stomach, liver and bowels to act.

Many studies have been made on the effect of emotions on the flow of digestive juices and on gastrointestinal movements. Strong emotion of any kind—excitement, anger, preoccupation with other things—stops the flow of gastric juice. They also stop stomach and intestinal movements, which are a necessary part of smooth digestion.

The preparation of food is supremely important. "Appetizing" is not a mere empty word. The better food smells, the more digestive juice your stomach will pour out in preparation for it. This has been proved by hundreds of the most carefully checked scientific experiments.

Then one act of digestion prepares the food for the next. Chewing the food well starts not only the salivary secretions, but also the stomach secretions. If the stomach is given time to act thoroughly on the food it prepares it for the intestines.

Now, considering just these three elements, in what way does the average American violate the physiological principles of eating?

Does he always eat with his mind free from worry? I should say not. Sometimes he orders lunch in the office so he can do some business while eating, so as not to waste any time. And the female of the species? What about her? How often will she hurry through lunch as fast as she can so she can go and do some shopping during the noon hour.

I recently was in Chicago between trains, and having nothing to do I went to a downtown movie about 11 in the morning. As I was leaving about 12:15 I noticed a perfect mob of young men and women coming in to see the show. They evidently were using their "lunch hour" to get some diversion. But the awful thing about it for me was to think that they had bolted their lunches under strong pressure and excitement, and now were going to sit down and let their poor stomachs struggle with their ill prepared food.

Recently a New York physician reviewed, in one of the best of our medical journals, his experience in a large clinic of digestive disorders. It is interesting to note that he gave as the two most frequent fundamental causes of these troubles—first anxiety, and second nervousness. Not ulcer of the stomach, mind you, or gallstones or appendicitis, but anxiety and nervousness.

"Don't Give Up Ship"

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: In reading your column I notice most of your letters concerning boy friends seem to be from girls 16 to 18. How about the girls nearing 30? What advice would you give them as to looking for a husband? Should we cultivate our little sister's cute ways, or just be our natural selves and act our age?"

"It is rather hard to know just where to look for a mate after reaching 30. Do you think we should give up the ship?"

"Hope some of the men readers will offer some help also."

Be yourselves, girls, whether you are 16 or 36. Some girls of 30 are naturally "cute," just as some girls of 16 are, others stately, still others the odd pal kind. You're doubtless a bit harder to please at 30 than you were at 16 or 18, so there is less excuse for making a mistake and being swept away by a handsome person and a good line of talk.

On the other hand of course, you may be so anxious to quit the job and grab a meal ticket or to experience the romance that you have so far missed, that you may seize the first opportunity that offers, without due consideration. Beware of this state of mind.

Girls—I say girls advisedly—of 30 should be on top of the world—matrimonially speaking. They have lived long enough to have had a thoroughly good time in the way that only youth can have. They have had experience enough to have developed good judgment, and yet are young enough to get all the thrills that come with real romance.

They have had time enough since their school days to make a success of business and to know just how much and how little that sort of life satisfies. All these things offset the fact that there are not so many men to pick from as there were when they were 20. But there are enough so that if you really want to marry there is no need to "give up the ship."

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Bill Baxley, managerial genius of the Lang Chevrolet softballers, is making overtures for a two-game, home and home series with the William Shroyer and Sons team of Dayton.

The idea is that Langs are the 1930 softball champions in Xenia and the Shroyer team won the recreation ball title in the Gem City this year and it is most fitting and proper the two champion teams should play a post-season series.

Shroyers won the title in Dayton by defeating the Wards Barbers, a colored team, in a championship final game which climaxed an elimination series.

Langs met Shroyers once this season in a game played at Dayton preliminary to a Dayton Aviator contest as a feature of "Booster Day" and lost 3 to 2 in seven innings.

Fred "Bulldog" Smith has broken the news to father "Tiny" that he is leaving Wednesday this week to enroll as a student at North Dakota State College, Fargo, N. D., with the idea of playing plenty of football this fall. "Bulldog" former Xenia Central star athlete, was a freshman at Wilmington College last season and started at halfback on "Shifty" Holen's eleven. "Shifty" is said to have been instrumental in persuading Fred to enroll at North Dakota this fall.

"Bulldog" may not be back home in time to play basketball during the coming season on the team which Bill Baxley is thinking seriously of organizing.

Speaking of this court quintet, it is considered possible a backer has been found for Baxley's courtiers. The team would probably include Bill LeSourd, former Ohio Wesleyan captain; Lee Ruse and other local luminaries. Home games would no doubt be played at the new Xenia state armory, which is just about completed.

Findley Torrence, who has a lease on the old Y. M. C. A. Bldg. at Market and Green Sts., has been approached with a proposition of installing a miniature golf course in that part of the building formerly used as a gymnasium. If the plan materializes the inside midgolf links should prove popular during the winter months. These outdoor baby courses have made a great hit. Roger Chambers might help operate the inside one if it is built.

The problem of financing softball in Xenia next season has been partly solved through the medium of the recent benefit series which went six games before the winner was decided. Gate receipts totaled $216 and the Xenia Playground Association will have about $170 after all expenses this season are paid to start off with in 1931. The sum of $170 will just about pay for the balls used all next summer.

At least eight softball teams are already assured for next year in Xenia, according to a survey made by Walker Gibney, president of the playground association, who hopes the day is not far distant when two diamonds will be available instead of one in view of the increasing interest in the sport here. As the only diamond now available is at Cox Field, ten teams is the maximum number which may be organized to play there. Gb thinks that local civic clubs should sponsor a few boys' teams.

Lee Ruse, hard-hitting third baseman for Langs, experienced an unusual batting slump during the latter part of the post-season softball series. In his last fourteen times at bat Lee failed to get a single hit and did not even get on base on an error or in any manner. He hit well in the first three games and then went into a slump in the last three.

XENIA ROTARIANS BEAT WASHINGTON CLUB AT SOFTBALL

Two years ago the Xenia Rotary Club was host to a visiting delegation of Washington, C. H. Rotarians here when a softball game was played and a steak roast enjoyed.

Washington C. H. Rotarians returned the compliment Tuesday when twenty-five members of the Xenia club motored to that city and were entertained.

The two clubs staged a return softball game at the Fayette County fairgrounds at 5 p. m. and after nine exciting innings the Xenia nine was the victor by the narrow margin of 6 to 5.

Russ Kimber pitched for the winners with Tommy McClelland behind the plate. Carl Ervin at first, Dr. H. B. McElree at second, John Baldwin at third, Verdin Mol at shortstop, Carlton Anderson, Dr. T. F. Myler, Homer Gratz and Schuyler McClelland in the outfield.

Each team used ten players in their lineups.

Following the game the players and other members of the two clubs dined at the Presbyterian Church, the M. H. G. class of the church serving a Swiss steak dinner.

BUCKEYE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION FIVE PRACTICE STARTED

"Stop Ohio" Is Battle
Cry Of Others;
Bishops Good

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 10.—King Football, the reigning monarch of college sports, was seated in his Ohio throne today as the five members of the Buckeye Intercollegiate athletic association officially started practice for their 1930 campaign.

With just a hint of a frost and the air refreshingly cool as the first warning of fall swept over the state this morning, there was a decided aroma of football. Within three weeks the season will have been officially inaugurated, and the battle will be on.

The first games of the present season will be played on Friday, September 26. Several other games will be played on the following day and a week later all of Ohio's thirty-seven colleges will be on the field.

Practice sessions at John Carroll University and Wittenberg College are well under way. They were the first to answer the call.

Ohio State University, the leader of Ohio colleges, does not start its early practice until next Monday, when Coach Sam Williamson expects approximately seventy-five grid aspirants to report. Williamson is starting his second season as mentor of the Buckeyes as they enter into their annual battle for big Ten honors.

"Salem Sam," who played football for three seasons under Dr. John W. Wilce and who later became the famous doctor's chief assistant coach, has a tough season ahead of him. He has a number of veterans returning but a winning backfield combination is something which may cause him a lot of worry.

The battle cry in the Buckeye conference this fall will be "stop Ohio." The Ohio University Bobcats loom as potential champions of the conference again as Coach Don Peden attempts to repeat the 1929 performance when the Athenian school kept its slate absolutely clean.

Peden has remarked that his 1930 squad looks even better than the 1929 champs did at the start of the season. Sixteen lettermen have returned to the Bobcat camp. This year's eleven will probably be molded around Gabriel and Kepler in the backfield, Marshall Griffith at tackle, Claude Christman at guard and George Brown at center.

The stars of the undefeated team of 1929 who were lost include Kapitan, Hastings, Brammer, Cramer, Young and Singler. There are some juniors who were shored in the background last year, however, who are worthy and have some experience.

George Vossler, the giant fullback who kept Miami from being total loss in last year's campaign, is lost to the Big Red team this season through graduation. The hopes of the coaches will be pinned on the sophomores again. Cincinnati does not promise to be a threat with many of the regulars gone. There are several lads from the 1929 freshman team which may develop, though. Sidering, quarterback, is the mainstay of the Bearcats.

If Ohio University does not sweep the Conference again, Ohio Wesleyan is expected to wear the crown. The Bishops will be strong contenders whichever way the wind blows, and the flag will undoubtedly fly between the Bobcats and Wesleyan.

Coach George Gauthier has a flock of veterans with which to form a title-containing eleven. They include Osborn, Gandrup, Jones, Neiberg, Kraft, Morton, Campbell and there are plenty of good sophomores.

Denison will probably be weak again but the Indians can be counted on to battle hard and furiously.

McGraw Highest Paid Manager in Baseball

At the highest salary ever paid the manager of a team, a yearly stipend second only to that received by Babe Ruth, John J. McGraw has signed for another five years. Beginning January 1, it is reported his salary will be increased to $70,000 annually.

MANAGERS TO MEET

MANAGERS of softball teams in the National and American Leagues are requested to meet with the Softball Commission at the Criterion clothing store, S. Detroit St., at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, at which time all unfinished business in connection with the 1930 playing season will be wound up and plans for next year may be discussed.

CENTRAL GRIDDEERS ARE BUSY

With one week of training behind them, Xenia Central High School candidates still have three more weeks of intensive practice ahead in which to round into shape for the season's opening game at Washington C. H., September 27.

Coach Walter C. "Pinky" Wilson devoted the first week of drills for the most part to limbering up exercises and fundamentals, but more strenuous workouts are now in store for his charges as they become better acquainted with the finer points of the pastime. The Bucaners' squad will not indulge in scrimmages before next week. The squad has been divided into two classes, the linemen working out together and the backfield candidates in a separate group in order to practice and avoid over-lapping of efforts.

"Pinky" has been giving an equal amount of his attention to both groups, explaining exactly how he wants each play executed and also going into greater detail with the "green" material concerning fundamentals of the game, as the strength of the Bucaners' eleven this fall will largely depend upon the ability shown by candidates who have had little or no previous experience.

Light "dummy" practices have been held and other phases of the game such as going down the field under punts, running out for passes, blocking and tackling have not been neglected. Blocking and tackling are departments which are being particularly stressed.

Coach Wilson is hunting high and low for a good kicker and a good forward passer this season.

but has not come to any definite conclusions in this respect. Three or four of the boys have about an equal chance to be entrusted with most of the passing and punting.

As may be expected at this early date, not a single candidate on the squad is actually certain of a regular berth on the team. Practically all the boys have equal chances of becoming regulars and the makeup of the eleven is expected to remain more or less of a mystery right up until the inaugural game with the "Blue Lions" three weeks hence.

HERE ARE 1930 CITY SOFTBALL CHAMPIONS

Introducing members of the squad of the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team, 1930 champions of the city.

The Lang Chevrolets won the title in the National League with plenty of room to spare and then became city champs by defeating the Krippendorf-Dittman Co. nine, American League winners, in two straight games in the city championship series.

Langs, during the current season, did not confine their diamond activities to this locality alone, but also played a great number of inter-city games with softball teams in Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and Washington C. H.

The city champs played an average of two games every week during the season and defeats were few and far between. The Chevrolet boys lost only two games to local teams during the regular league season.

The Lang nine was powerful on both defense and offense and this combined with the fact it also received good pitching made the Xenia outfit the strongest ever developed in this city.

The above picture was taken at Cox Athletic Field, where local softball games are staged. Members of the squad are first row, left to right—Bob Shaw, right fielder; Bob Buell, right fielder; Don Fuller, right fielder; John Gibney, pitcher; Joe Smittle, second baseman; Lou McCoy, catcher; Lee Ruse, third baseman; Glenn Patterson, shortstop; Phil Corr, catcher.

Standing—Bill Baxley, manager; Lawrence Fuller, captain and center fielder; Frank Cain, first baseman; "Happy" Davis, first baseman; Fred Lang, backer of the team; Delmer McCoy; Harry Williams, pitcher; Birch Bell, left fielder; John Hurley, also a pitcher for the team, was not present when the photo was taken.

Seated in front of the squad is "Smoky" Davis, son of the Lang first baseman, who was the team's mascot. The silver trophy donated by Jim Kelly, Dayton, to the city champs, is also to be seen.

Coach George Gauthier has a flock of veterans with which to form a title-containing eleven. They include Osborn, Gandrup, Jones, Neiberg, Kraft, Morton, Campbell and there are plenty of good sophomores.

Denison will probably be weak again but the Indians can be counted on to battle hard and furiously.

GOLF ENDURANCE CONTEST 231 HOURS

The new world's record recently attained by Robert Hopkins, Jamestown, in the miniature golf endurance contest held under auspices of the Old Mill Camp bantam links at Cedarville, was 231 hours, bettering the previous record established at Piqua, O., by 111 hours. It was announced officially Wednesday by sponsors of the marathon.

Hopkins, the only survivor of the original five entrants, puttered around the midgolf links continuously from 2 p. m. Monday, August 25 to 4:50 a. m. Thursday, September 4. Entrants were permitted fifteen-minute intervals to rest every hour but the rest periods were not excluded from the calculation.

The Old Mill Camp wishes to acknowledge merchandise gifts donated as prizes to the winner of the contest and Howard Freed, Jamestown, runnerup, by the following Xenia merchants: Coates barber shop, The Criterion Co., Hy-Art Shop, Famous Auto Supply Co. and L. A. Wagner, jeweler.

HUSTON LED HITTERS DURING SERIES; LANGS OUTHIT STARS

Howell Huston, first baseman for the All-Stars, was the individual batting star of the post-season benefit softball series between the Lang Chevrolet Co., 1930 city champions and a picked team of National League players which ended Monday night when the All-Stars won the sixth and deciding game.

"Sam" participated in five of the six games and was credited with nine hits, including a home run and two doubles, in twenty times at bat, an average of .450.

Joe Smittle, slugging second-baseman for Langs, was runnerup for batting honors with a mark of .407, based on eleven hits, including two triples, in twenty-seven trips to the platter.

These two players, however, were the only batters in the 400 classification as the hitting on both teams was not as good as season's averages of the players had indicated, would be the case.

Langs lost the series but they outbatted the All-Stars by sixteen percentage points. The city champs had a team batting average of .269 for the series as compared with .253 for the All-Stars.

The following composite box scores show how the members of each team hit during the series:

LANGS PLAY DAYTON SHROYERS HERE ON WEDNESDAY EVENING

Here is the softball game local fans have been looking forward to with unconcealed eagerness—William Shroyer and Sons, champions of Dayton, versus the Lang Chevrolet Co., 1930 champions of Xenia. Manager Bill Baxley was successful in arranging for a post-season game with the Gem City champs and Shroyers will appear at Cox Athletic Field against Langs Wednesday night this week, it is announced.

In the hope that nine innings can be played before darkness enshrouds the field, the contest will be started promptly at 6 o'clock.

In the event of a Lang victory, the two teams will probably play another game at Dayton next week.

Earlier in the season Shroyers nosed out Langs at Dayton, 3 to 2 in a contest limited to seven innings, indicating the rival city champions are evenly matched.

This game should prove a tremendous drawing card. Reluctant to write flims to the current season, Langs have also booked a game with a Sabina team to be played Friday night this week at the athletic field here, it is disclosed.

Garage looted

Miss Ruby Manor notified police that a thief who invaded her garage at 19 Center St., sometime Tuesday night stole the tools from a tool bag in her Ford coupe. The burglar took the bag, however, and his attempts to remove the battery from the car met with failure. Although the front door of the garage had been left unlocked, the unidentified visitor went to the trouble of picking the fastening on the rear door to gain entrance.

ARRANGE PAIRINGS FOR OPENING ROUND OF NEW TOURNAMENT

Annual Championship Event Will Start At Golf Club

Pairings are being announced for the first round of match play in the annual tournament to determine the 1930 golf champion of the Xenia Country Club.

The eight club members who received the lowest scores in the qualifying round which closed last Sunday are eligible to compete for the club championship, which has been held by Vern L. Fairles for the last two years.

Jack Barlow, who led the field in the qualifying round with a score of 78 for the eighteen holes, will face Dr. W. T. Ungard in his first round match. Dr. Ungard shot an 82.

A. H. Finlay, who qualified with an 83, will play Milan Davidson, who shot an 80.

John Davidson, with a qualifying score of 81, meets S. M. McKay, who had an 84.

In the fourth match of the first round, W. C. Craig, who was runnerup to Barlow in the preliminary round with a 77, faces Dr. T. F. Myler, who shot an 82.

First round and semi-final matches will be eighteen-hole affairs and the final match for the club championship will go thirty-six holes.

The eight entrants in the tournament may play off their first round matches at any time, according to Pat Gillespie, caddy-master, who believes the tournament will be completed by October 1.

The present tournament is distinguished from the annual President's Cup Tournament, which is still in progress at the club, by the fact the players do not receive handicaps.

Toy City Where Revolution Smoulders

BATTLE FOR SENATE IN LOUISIANA

Ruined by Haitian Hurricane

Overshadowed by one of Peru's majestic snow-capped peaks until it resembles a toy city, the settlement of Arequipa nestles at the foot of this mountain in seeming peace while revolution is rampant throughout the Republic. In this city is imprisoned Captain Harold B. Grow, American head of the Peruvian National Air Forces, because of his support of the deposed President Augusto B. Leguia (inset right). The Government is now being handled by Lieut.-Col. Louis M. Sanchez Cerro (left).

Investigating the Investigators

Here the Senate committee, in Chicago, is subjecting Alice Kolber to an interrogation. She was the only person found in the offices of the Dannenberg Detective Agency when U. S. deputy marshals, armed with subpoenas, appeared there. The Dannenberg Agency was retained by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick for the investigation of Senator Nye. Among those in the picture are (l. to r.) Senator Nye, Senator Porter H. Dale and Lloyd Bemis, auditor.

Columbia Again to Span Atlantic

BELIEVED DESTROYED IN 136-MILE HURRICANE

Historic old Columbus Church in Santo Domingo City, Haiti, which is believed to have been destroyed in the 136-mile hurricane which cost hundreds of lives and millions in property. The city was cut off from all communication by the catastrophe.

Louisiana's Democratic senatorial fight, in the primaries, between Joseph E. Ransdell, above, incumbent, and Governor Huey P. Long, inset, promises to be one of the most bitter in the state's history. Long has been a storm center during his entire term as governor.

AMOS 'N' ANDY IN BABY PARADE

Betty and Renee Greenberg, three-year-old twins, giving their impression of Amos 'n' Andy on a much-applauded float in the Rockaway, L. I., Baby Parade. The little girls look as drolly unhappy as the radio favorites they impersonated sound when heard over the "mike."

INDICTED NEW YORK OFFICIALS

Four New York City office-holders who have been indicted by the Grand Jury. Upper, left to right, are William E. Walsh, former chairman of the Board of Standards and Appeals; Dr. William F. Doyle, ex-chief veterinarian of the same board. Lower, left to right, are ex-Magistrate George F. Ewald and Mar-in J. Healey, suspended first Deputy Commissioner of Plant and Structures.

An aerial view of beautiful Santo Domingo City, Haiti, before the recent hurricane reduced it to ruins, killing 800 and injuring 1,000 persons.

Santo Domingo is the oldest city in the Western Hemisphere. Thousands of its inhabitants were reported facing a water famine and starvation as a result of the catastrophe.

LEE'S HOME, NEW NATIONAL SHRINE IN SOUTH

The ancestral home of Gen. Robert E. Lee in Westmoreland County, Va., will become a national shrine on October 12 next, sixtieth anniversary of the Confederate soldier chief's death. Inset, Governor John Garland Pollard of Virginia, who will officiate at the dedication ceremonies.

Official Hostess Of the Dominion

Miss Mildred Bennett, sister of the Honorable R. B. Bennett, is the First Lady of the Dominion by reason of the bachelorhood of her brother, the Prime Minister. Miss Bennett, one of the most charming women of Canada, is Prime Minister Bennett's official hostess at all functions.

New Reserve Head?

Eugene Meyer, Jr., of Mount Kisco, N. Y., will be appointed Governor of the Federal Reserve Board if a legal difficulty offered by the fact that another New Yorker is a board member can be overcome. Meyer formerly was a member of the War Finance Corporation and later became chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

INFANT VICTIM OF SHOOTING

Fifteen-month-old Norma Booze had her face peppered with shot and three fingers shot off when her mother and another woman were shot to death at Cambridge, Mass. The child's father is being held on murder charges. The shooting is alleged to have followed a family argument over Mrs. Booze's attendance at a certain church. A neighbor is shown holding the child.

AND NOW WE HAVE "POOL" GOLF

Pygmy or corner lot golf has a rival at last! It's "pool" golf. Fifteen golf balls of varied colors are racked in a triangle, just as in pool. Players attempt to putt the balls into side and corner pockets, using another golf ball as the "cue ball" and a putter as a "cue stick." Points are scored according to the color of the ball pocketed. These Detroit, Mich., misses are playing the game.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE OPENED WEDNESDAY; ADDRESS HEARD

Discussing the theme, "A Call to the Colors," Frank B. McMillan, Mt. Gilead, O. who is filling his seventh consecutive term as president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, delivered the principal address Wednesday at exercises which marked the opening of Cedarville College for the fall term of its thirty-seventh year.

DEFEAT OF BLEASE, VICTORY OF LONG ARE VOTING FEATURES

Detroit was early considered out of the race. The same number of precincts showed the Detroit with but 24,402 votes.

Luren Dickinson, of Charlotte, left his opponents for the lieutenant governorship far in the rear with an advantage of 70,000 over his nearest rival, Tom Read, state representative. The vote in 1,452 precincts from over the state was Dickinson, 115,830 and Read 52,150.

at one time president of the Manufacturer's Association of Central Ohio and at present is a leading director in this organization.

He also served as probate judge of Morrow County and last year was elected president of the National Association of State Chambers of Commerce. As a layman he has filled almost every position in the Presbyterian Church, having served as a director and trustee of the Central Board of Education located in New York City.

Music for the opening exercises was furnished under the direction of Miss Lydia A. Berkley, director of the college department of music, and Mrs. Walter Corry, assistant director.

CANADA PLANS INCREASES IN TARIFF RATES

lated to protect and foster Canadian industries. Surely there can be no complaint. Protection on your side of the border surely cannot be prejudicial on this side. We, too, have industries.

Monday and Tuesday were registration days but figures on the total enrollment were not yet available Wednesday.

A large freshman class has enrolled at Cedarville for the 1930-31 school year and nearly all of last year's students in the three lower classes have returned.

What the effect will be, however, on the commercial intercourse between the two countries, which last year reached the enormous figure of $1,368,000,000 in trade, remains to be seen. That the new American tariff rates will give vast encouragement to the "trade within the British empire" movement is acknowledged on all sides.

This "trade within the empire" theory is due for a thorough discussion at the forthcoming imperial conference in London, convening September 30. The new Canadian prime minister, the Right Hon. Richard Bennett, is due to attend that conference, provided he can put his tariff and unemployment program through the special session in time to sail in Ottawa.

There is little doubt that he will be able to do it. Unlike his predecessor, W. L. Mackenzie King, he has a competent working majority in the house, which is not comparable to the Republican majority in the house of representatives at Washington.

The unemployment problem in Canada is acute, just as much if not more so than in the United States. It was bad last spring. It became worse after the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill by the American congress. Whether the enactment of this bill had anything to do with the increase in Canadian unemployment is a disputed question, but the fact remains that there were more jobless Canadians after its enactment than before.

The American tariff bill was signed in June. Within a month there was a general election in Canada, and the Mackenzie King government, which held sway for some nine years was voted out of power and the conservative party, headed by Bennett, voted in.

The Canadian premier is a lawyer, banker, manufacturer, and a strong nationalist. The magnitude of his victory may be realized when it is considered that the Mackenzie King government consisted of 123 liberals and ninety conservatives, with the progressives and farmers holding the balance of power in a house of 245 members, and that the present government consists of 138 conservatives and only eighty-seven liberals, with the progressive farmers, so strong in the Mackenzie King government, entirely outside the breastworks.

Secure in this majority and acutely conscious of the mandate which he interpreted his election to have meant, the new premier called a special session of the parliament to put conservative measures into effect. If those measures, including increased tariffs against American products, mean hard luck to American producers, that, in the words of his friends, is "just too bad" but is inescapable under the circumstances. The next month will see them enacted.

RIGHT KIND OF HEAT AIDS WINTER HEALTH

Warm Air, Choice of Many Authorities, at Its Best When Furnished By Torrid Zone Furnace

Warm air heating has long been the choice of foremost health authorities. It is the only system which sets up a constant circulation of air—thus obtaining proper ventilation even when all windows are closed. At regular intervals the stale air in the room is replaced by fresh, healthful air properly moistened by the water pan in the furnace.

The Torrid Zone is steel boiler plate, riveted and cold-calcined at the seams. There's no cement to loosen and fall out—no gas or dust ever escapes up the warm air pipes into the rooms of your home.

Be sure to see the many features of the Torrid Zone. Models for all purposes—burning hard coal, soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil. Made by the Lennox Furnace Company, Syracuse, N. Y.—Marshalltown, Iowa—Toronto, Canada.

CLOSE-UPS OF LON CHANEY - - - Fadeout - - - By Artist Scott

The advent of talking pictures found only two noted film actors firmly refusing to make sound movies. They were Lon Chaney and Charley Chaplin. Friends believed Lon's throat ailment caused his stand.

Eventually relenting, Chaney appeared in one talkie, a revival of "The Unholy Three," in which Lon spoke with several voices. This was destined to be his final film appearance.

Shortly after completing "The Unholy Three" Lon became ill. He consulted New York physicians and then went for what was to have been a long vacation in his cabin home in the Sierra mountains.

LON CHANEY—One of his last photographs

Lon's condition suddenly took a turn for the worse. He was rushed to a Los Angeles hospital where, after a brief rally following several blood transfusions, he suffered a relapse and died.

Four United States marines stood guard as Lon Chaney was laid to rest not far from the studios where he found fame. His should be the epitaph: "He always gave a good show." THE END

Farm Notes

OATS VALUABLE FOR LAYERS That oats make a valuable feed for layers and provide something which functions more effectively than yellow corn has been substantiated by extensive tests at the Ohio Experiment Station during the past three years. A total of 600 layers were used in the experiment, conducted by D. C. Kenard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station. The nine groups of layers which received rations with 30 per cent of the corn replaced by that amount of plump oats averaged 15 per cent better egg production while the hatchability of the eggs and the mortality of the birds were practically the same. The groups which received the oats ate 10 per cent more feed and averaged 3 per cent more in monthly body weights. It should be emphasized, however, that even the oats ration carried 46 to 50 per cent yellow corn. Just how much replaced by oats was not determined. A test is now in progress for comparison of a ration containing 40 per cent corn and 20 per cent oats, with one that contains 15 per cent corn and 40 per cent oats. Preliminary results from the latter are favorable thus far.

Different methods of feeding the oats were tested. Practically the same beneficial results were secured whether the oats were fed whole, finely ground, hulled, or germinated with sprouts 1/2 to 1 inch in length. Somewhat better hatchability of eggs resulted from the groups receiving germinated oats, but whether germinated oats can be depended upon to improve hatchability will need to be determined by further tests.

Since heavy oats are now available for poultry feeding at less cost than corn in certain sections, poultry keepers may well take advantage of this valuable feed for their fall and winter layers.

It seems that at least 20 per cent of the total grain and mash may be composed of heavy oats to advantage. The oats may be fed whole as a part of an all-mash, whole-oats feed mixture, or the oats may be finely ground and made a part of the dry mash. Others may prefer feeding germinated oats. There seems to be no advantage in feeding sprouted oats with sprouts an inch or more in length.

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmet, secretary to Ellery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, confidential man, whom she loves, in running down an office "leak." Goss' chief clerk, Atlee Wainright, proposes marriage, which Kitty refuses. She defeats a professional swimmer in a race, but indignantly rejects money a gambler offers her. Her home-town lover, John Spurgeon, arrives unexpectedly in New York; Kitty stages a party for him and refuses his proposal. She learns that Spurgeon is investing in Gila Mine, which she knows will drop. To get money to help him she swims as a professional, wins $2,000 and persuades Stockbroker Hemming, to sell Gila Mine stock for her. Hemming pretends to John that her winnings are his, made on the stock market. Obsessed by thoughts that she has lowered herself by swimming as professional, she resolves to resign, but first confesses all her "sins" to the railroad. Goss, who will turn from her with scorn, Gordon praises her loyalty and asks her to marry him. During a happy week, she promises Gordon that no matter what he does in the future it will be "all right with me." Told by Goss to guard carefully a certain document, she is kidnapped as she leaves the office late at night. Her captors want the document she carries unknown to them. They force her to look over a transom of a door in a strange house, in which she sees Gordon Platt with pale Edith in his arms. Even burning anger will not make her false to her trust. The kidnappers run the automobile, in which she is, on a ferry, from which she escapes by diving over the rail.

She swims to New York, and taxis to her home where four men lie in wait for her. She orders the taxi to drive on.

Fleeing to Sally's she hears voices, but no one answers her knock. She telephones her employer, Goss, and receives strange instructions to drive to her home and be kidnapped again, to see the same notes. Obviously she cannot do this. She is kidnapped a second time.

She is threatened with bodily harm unless she reveals the document. She refuses; they retire to consult. She looks over a transom and sees her kidnappers.

CHAPTER 41

But every with fear in her heart and every fiber of her being outraged—for Kitty was a modest, decent girl, with fine instincts and a passion of inward purity, which was innately offended at anything coarse—Kitty looked at the faces, fixing them in her mind.

He of the nasal voice was thin, a pinched nose, pale, dark hair, a twisted mouth.

The big man who held the whip was obviously of a lower type, a brute. He might be a prize fighter, an ex-battler, a policeman—no! Spike was a policeman.

The man next him had a short greyish moustache, but his identifying mark was a livid white scar across his chin.

The fourth man had not removed his handkerchief; she could see no more of him than before. He was short and stout—but hundreds of men are short and stout.

Kitty's arms gave out. She lowered herself to the chair, carried it noiselessly across the room and had just time to seat herself when the big burly man came back, alone.

He wasted no time, but strode over to her, pinioned her hands in his and tied them securely with a handkerchief.

"Now!" he growled. His voice matched the face he did not know she had seen. "I . . ."

Kitty looked him in the eyes; she could see the flush come up beyond the mask on his forehead.

He tried again. "I don't want to do it, sister!" he grumbled. "You look like a nice kid. But you'll tell or . . . we'll hurt you."

There was no mistaking his gesture. Kitty nodded. The play had gone far enough. Not even for the sake of Gordon or Mr. Goss did she want to be hurt.

"What do you want to know?" she asked.

"All you know! An' we ain't fooling, sister. You tell and tell straight or . . ."

He took hold of her arm with one hairy hand.

"Let go!" she answered him. "I'll give it to you."

He stared at her. "Give it to me?" he growled.

"Yes, your master!"

The tough swore at her. The general tone of his remarks was that he hadn't any master.

"Oh, yes you have!" she retorted. "You are just a cur dog, doing your master's bidding! And he is only a mongrel or he wouldn't be fighting a girl—and not playing fair!"

For an instant she thought the man would strike her; his eyes gleamed evilly above the mask—the unnecessary mask, although he knew it not. Then he thought better of it and stepped to the door.

"C'mon in!" he grumbled. "The she-cat will spill!"

The four men filed into the room. Kitty had taken the swift opportunity and pulled from her soaked dress the note book package. It, too, was soaked. But she hoped it would still be legible.

She met the man with the queer voice half-way.

"You must be very proud of yourself!" she derided him. "You fight so fairly—you act like such a regular hero-man! But I've no intention of being manhandled by such as you. I've done my best. Here's my note book. It contains all I know about what you want to know!"

She handed it to him. "I was told to keep it in a safe place. I was taking it home to put it in my trunk."

Eagerly her captor tore off the soaked wrappings and gently opened the limp pages. Then he whirled on her.

"Short-hand! I can't read it!" he snarled.

"Can't you? That's just too bad!" she answered. "Probably you won't believe me if I read it to you. But surely in all New York you can find someone you can trust, who can read it!"

The man stood in deep thought for a moment. Then he raised his wrapped face and Kitty thought he grinned under the handkerchief.

"You'll do!" he answered, and his voice laughed. "Write it out for me—here!" He swept the cover from a typewriter.

"I can do that!" agreed Kitty. "But how will you know I write what is here?"

"You'll write it, then you'll read from your notes while I'll read what you've written! If it's the same, word for word, I'll know you've told the truth! If it isn't . . ."

Kitty read the threat. She smiled inside; this was going exactly as Mr. Goss wanted. Which ever book it was, evidently Mr. Goss wanted them to have it. She gave her captor credit for being clever—she would not herself have thought of the transcription, checked with an oral reading from the same notes. Obviously she could not do this. On the spur of the moment, make up a document and then remember it word for word.

She sat down to the typewriter, and the little group was treated to an exhibition of real typing. Kitty's hands had warmed again, and her fingers flew. It was not as long a job as before, because she was familiar with the copy. But even so, it took her half an hour to type the soaked pages.

Then she handed the results to the masked group. She was interested to observe that only two read it; the others sat around awkwardly waiting.

"All right! Now read it back to me!" snarled the nasal voice. "And God help you if you've tried any tricks!"

Kitty read her notes, the man followed her typed copy. When she had finished—a matter of ten minutes—she folded the paper and put it in his pocket.

"Can I go home now?" asked Kitty, innocently.

"What do you take us for, fools?" inquired the voice. "You're not going anywhere you can tell anyone, until we reap the results of this!"

He nodded to his henchmen. Kitty was again seized, again the cloth bag went over her head.

"But don't be scared, sister!" The words came dimly through the folds. "We'll take you somewhere where you'll be quite safe, and get you some dry clothes and something to eat."

And with that Kitty had to be content.

In the car, Kitty slumped. Excitement, the capture, the swim, the chase, telephoning Goss, capturing the strain on her arms as she chinned herself, chill, fear, effort, all had exhausted her. She lay back on the soft seat of the limousine, hardly caring where she was being taken or why. Even the thought of Gordon unfaithful; Gordon, telling Edith—Edith, of all women!—that he would get rid of his sweetheart—did not hurt as it should. It stood outside of her, a pain yet to be endured, an agony with which she yet must grapple.

But now physical weariness had its way with her. She had fought her way with her. She had kept her faith. She had done what she had promised to do. And she had won, although her captors thought the victory was theirs. She had seen three of the four faces; never again could she catch a glimpse of any of them, but she would recognize him. Deep in her heart, rumbling a little feeling of joy—for Kitty was but human.

"I'll get square, some way!" she thought. "I know one man, at least, who will fight for me!"

Oddly, the thought of Atlee, who had asked her to marry him, of John Spurgeon, who was broken hearted that she would not love him, became comforts. Either of them, she was sure, would take personal revenge on those who tormented her.

The car stopped. She was carried somewhere, up many steps, thrust into a room; a key turned. Kitty was alone.

Weakly she untied the bag and pulled it from her head. The room was dark, but some light filtered in from a window. She looked out on an unknown alley in an unknown town. Too high to jump. She turned from the window. Behind her was a bed. Too tired to undress, soaked as she was, Kitty fell on it, drew a warm blanket over her and fell asleep to dream of being safe in Gordon's arms.

The Theater

Greta Garbo may play the role of "Mati-Hari" famous woman spy executed by the French during the World War. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has bought Barney Glazer's play, in which the colorful secret agent is the central character and it is believed intended for a Garbo vehicle.

In the meantime the Swedish star is shortly to embark on "Red Dust." Some say George Fitzmaurice is to direct her as his first assignment on the Metro lot. He is now finishing Evelyn Lay's picture for Samuel Goldwyn.

Though the "Mati-Hari" story is not definitely scheduled, a screen treatment already is in the hands of studio executives and that hints of early production.

Hollywood continues to make strange bed-fellows. Abdeslam Ben Mohammed Khoubarik, former Riff chieftan, was met at the train there this week by Louis Vande-

Did you know that Michael Curtiz the director used to be a strong man in a Hungarian circus?

Col. Theodore Roosevelt passed through Xenia enroute to Columbus and at the Pennsylvania station here was greeted by 200 people, who gathered about the rear platform of his car and clamored for a chance to shake his hand.

The Rev. Charles W. Sullivan, newly appointed pastor of the First M. E. Church here, will have charge of the services Sunday for the first time.

necker, a one-time member of the French Foreign Legion. In former days the two were enemies in desert warfare, but now both will work as technical advisers on "Beau Ideal," sequel to "Beau Geste."

Not long ago, at the same studio a former German baron, who ferreted out British military secrets in the World War, was cast in a picture opposite several former British officers.

Men from all professions constantly come to Hollywood to enter the pictures. Thus Roberto E. Guzman, at one time secretary to Adolfo de la Huerta, provisional president of Mexico in 1923, is now playing the lead in Universal's Spanish version of "The Cat Creeps."

A romance that began in an Australian company of "Rose Marie," reached its climax in Hollywood with the marriage of John Garriek, English leading man and Harriet Bennett, New York stage actress.

Mr. Garriek was Reginald Dandey when both he and his bride were playing in the Romberg operetta. Now he is in the films, and doing very well. He has just completed the juvenile lead in Fox's "Just Imagine." He was Maureen O'Sullivan's sweetheart in "Song of My Heart."

DECLARES WOMEN DO NOT EMPLOY ENOUGH MAKEUP "AND HOW"

DENVER, Sept. 10.—Girls make a mistake when they try "to be your age."

This is the advice for girls from 18 to 80 by no less an authority than Mildred L. Haas, of Long Beach, Calif., president of the All-American Beauty Culture Association, in Denver for the national convention of the organization.

She believes, briefly, that women don't use enough make-up, that rouge is dabbed on with too little care, that soap is good for the face, that men are taking to facials, that "straggly" bobs are passe.

"The average woman does not use enough makeup," said Mrs. Haas, who has been in the beauty business nineteen years. "In the majority of cases, those who do apply cosmetics, literally throw it on without using the proper base. They damage their facial pores."

"Rouge, for instance, should not be dabbed on in a little circle; it should go on in the little triangle formed by an imaginary line running from the corner of the eye to the center of the ear, and down to a point about two inches below. After putting on the rouge, it should be toned down by lightly rubbing it upward, not down."

Women who boast of using no soap on their faces fail to get a vote of approval from Mrs. Haas. "Look at the skin on your body," she explained. "It's just like that on your face. When you take a bath, you use plain old soap and water. Soap and water never injured men's faces, and I believe men have better looking complexions than women!"

Men are going in for facials, marcel and light face liftings in surprising numbers, according to Mrs. Haas. So great has been the influx of men into beauty shops, that Mrs. Haas is going to open a beauty shop for men only. Men will be employed as operators.

Women are growing more careful about their looks all the time, the veteran beauty operator said. Powders are being blended to match the individual skin and rouge and lipstick are taking more natural colors. Dark powders are "out," she declared.

Yellow, not too near orange, and red, not too near light tomato color, are the most attractive colors for brunettes, she said. Blondes look best in soft pastel shades, with blue most desirable. "Hair should be worn either long or closely bobbed, in her opinion; the "straggly" bob that comes in between is out."

"There is less artificiality in dress and makeup than ever before," Mrs. Haas stated. "Women are smart looking without resorting to freakish modes, nowadays. The western women are practically setting their own styles now. They are not so entirely dependent upon the whims of the east."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Along with the first week of school comes the organization of classes, clubs, bands, orchestras, sports and what not.

The senior class has completed its selection of officers and other classes are near the completion of organization with the exception of the freshman class which always holds its organization meeting at the beginning of the second semester.

The junior class has chosen as its leaders for the year: David Short, president; Howard Thompson, vice president; Leona Middleton, secretary; Paul Baldner, treasurer; and Clyde Shumaker, faculty adviser. The juniors expect an enjoyable and prosperous year under the leadership of these students and great things are expected of them. The class will be quite active in a number of different affairs and the success will depend largely on the ability of its officers.

The sophomore class though not as active in affairs as the two upper classes, will have plenty to do. Its only object is to make money to carry it through the final years and to entertain the remaining classes in some enjoyable social affairs. The class has chosen as leaders: Eleanor Conklin, president; Philip Aultman, vice-president; Morris Hyman, secretary, and Thomas Huston, treasurer.

William Hugh Miller has begun the organization of bands, orchestras, and glee clubs and practices are being held daily in preparation for operettas, recitals and the like. Mr. Miller thinks that the interest in music at Central is growing greater each year and hopes that within a short while a school band like that of rival schools may be formed.

The faculty of Central has changed a good deal this year and quite a number of new faces are seen presiding in the different rooms. Mr. Shumaker, instructor in English and public speech, arrived this week after an extended course in additional work this summer. His place had been taken care of by Mrs. S. O. Hale until his return.

MT. TABOR

Mr. and Mrs. James Jones and family attended the Williams reunion at Serpent Mound, Adams County, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Hollingsworth and family of Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kyle and family of Bridgeport, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. Hollingsworth and family.

Use of Children as Snoopers Taught in Dry Agents' School

Text in "Shadowing" Course Advocates Use of Children as Dry Aids In Bolstering the Government's Defense Against the Liquor Menace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—National-wide criticism has caused Amos W. Woodcock, Director of Enforcement of the Volstead Act, to veto part of the curriculum of the new school for prohibition agents in the capital.

Part of the texts that were being studied by the pupils learning to catch more of those big bad rum-runners that are making our country more wet than dry taught the embryo agents to employ little boys in their detective work.

The texts of the course were drawn up by H. M. Dengler, "principal" of the school and when made public caused a concerted roar of disapproval to go up from press and public from New York to California.

The eliminated instructions about this phase of the agent's work read, "Two boys can engage in games near the home of the subject without attracting attention, whereas a man loitering in the neighborhood would soon arouse suspicion."

This is logical enough reasoning but Americans all over the country refused to not countenance this notion of bolstering the bulwarks of the government's defense against the liquor menace.

Another part of the text, said, that a boy on the bicycle may be able to trail a suspected truck more successfully than an agent in an automobile.

When news of these instructions were called to the attention of Col. Woodcock, he said, "Too much emphasis has been put on these items in the course which is designed to acquaint the agents fully with original methods. We had no intention of hiring boys for prohibition work."

Nevertheless, following this rather indignant statement, Col. Woodcock announced that the offending portions of the course had been withdrawn.

In drawing the texts up, Mr. Dengler, the author, followed in part a correspondence course in detective work which he conducted at one time. It includes all the latest experience and data on methods of criminal investigation.

Some other portions of the text has called for widespread criticism. For example, one of the methods outlined for trailing trucks is the notion of tying a bucket of sand to the spoke of a wheel. When the truck starts to move, the agent should pull out a cork in the bottom of a pail and thus have a clue to the direction the truck has gone.

No indication of what the agent should do when the sand runs out was contained in the instructions. It all sounds vaguely like the well-known method of catching birds by sprinkling salt on their tails.

The texts also advise the agents-to-be to read such instructive works as Poe's "Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Gold Bug."

Mr. Dengler, it appears, has discovered the road to success in prohibition enforcement.
